ELECTROTHANATOS.

Execution of Delinquent Dogs by Electricity in the Station Yard.

Interesting experiments in killing dogs by electricity were given in the Police Station yard Friday evening. Marshal Soper, Deputy Marshal Hopkins, Dr. Miner, police officers, and a few others witnessed the operations. Mr. Faulkner, Superintendent of the Electric Lighting Station, with assistants performed the experiments. They were quite successful, considering that special apparatus for the purpose was not on hand.

The first experiment was on a small yellow dog, and it had barely time to give a dying yell after one shock. At first the ends of conductors from the electric lights were baited with meat for the dog to bite. As he had no appetite or perhaps scented lightning, he refused to be tempted with the morsel. Another expedient was therefore resorted to, which was to loop the copper conductor round the dog's neck. This being done the animal was placed on a sheet of iron in a box, one of the electric poles being connected with the iron. The current was then turned on by a switch, and the dog giving a yell stretched itself out in death.

For the next victim a tiny black and white cur was brought forth, from the kennel prison of unlicensed dogs, and its neck encircled with the death-dealing noose. Having long hair, water was splashed over the neck to make conduction. The operation above described was repeated, with immediate results seemingly the same as in the first case. The "good-looking doctor" of "Bumps and Jinks" pronounced the culprit dead, but after the lapse of a few seconds doggie got up and started to walk away. It was again seized by the liars and, despite the appeals of spectators to let it off, was again put in the terrific circuit. Again it squealed; but the deadly current was poured into its system, the switch gear spluttering out blue flames at each turn of the electrician's wrist, rigor mortis gradually came on, and the unanimous medical and lay verdict was that the dog was reduced by one item.

While Capt. Hopkins was placing the second dog in the box the first time, he exclaimed something intense in the tones of a Comanche Indian on the war path. It seemed he had incautiously touched the wire loop round the dog's neck, and his person making a ground connection the circuit was completed. The result was he received a shock that gave his nerves a sensation as of burning. When the first experiment was coming off, it put the city lights out, but Mr. Faulkner had a man to stand by in the lighting station during the second, so that nothing worse than a flickering of the lamps was produced.

Y. M. C. A.

Monthly Meeting—A Good Month's Work.

The regular monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held Thursday evening, President W. W. Hall in the chair. Recording Secretary R. W. Podmore read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved. Treasurer E. O. White made his report, showing that there is a balance on hand of $176.95.

Chief Justice Judd, from the Hawaiian branch of the Y. M. C. A., made a very encouraging report of the work done by the Hawaiians. That branch had been the means of promoting the interests of the Y. M. C. A. on the other islands. During His Honor's recent visit to Maui, he never saw a drunken native at Lahaina. The other committee reported the business done in their departments, and it was evident that the Y. M. C. A. work in these islands is in the main satisfactory.

Two new members were admitted, and the collection amounted to $7.25. There were nearly twenty members present. A lecture will be given in the Y. M. C. A. hall this week.

Hawaiian Exhibits in Sydney.

This paper acknowledges the receipt from Mr. and Mrs. Maffing, Sydney, N. S. W., of large photographs of "Hawaiian Exhibits," forwarded by His Majesty the King of the Hawaiian Islands from the Hale Nana Society of Honolulu, and exhibited at the Exhibition of Women's Industries and Centenary Fair, held in Sydney, N. S. W., October, 1888. Upon the back of the card bearing the photograph are printed a catalogue of the exhibits numbering sixty-seven and a descriptive article from the Sydney Mail. The photograph is very fine and shows the Hawaiian flag against a massive Corinthian pillar in the building and the large portraits of King Kalakaua and Queen Kapiolani at either end of the Hawaiian section. These portraits are brought out clear enough to have been taken from life. As suggested in this paper in a previous notice, it is to be hoped that these exhibits may also be shown at the Melbourne Centennial Exhibition, in addition to the collection presided over by Mr. H. H. Williams, the Commissioner there for Hawaii.

The Debating Society.

There was an excellent discussion of exclusive franchises in the Debating Society on Thursday night. Mr. Neth led off against the wisdom of granting such things, and Mr. Robertson replied in defense of them under certain circumstances. Most of the speakers that followed supported the responder. Two new members were elected. The topic for next meeting is the following: "Resolved, That independence under constitutional government is preferable to foreign annexation for the Hawaiian Islands." Mr. F. Turill will lead the affirmative, and Mr. John F. Smith the negative side.

Old Honolulu.

Hon. W. D. Alexander has received from Prof. Dana of Yale College, the photograph of a panoramic drawing of Honolulu in 1840. The sketch was made from the U. S. S. Peacock in three parts, that have now been put together and photographed. It is very interesting, showing the grass houses then chiefly composing the city, together with the old fort, and other notable objects of that time. The photograph will be placed on exhibition down town.
